

HEDGE
SCHOOL

HISTORY
IRELAND

HEDGE SCHOOL

in association with the Irish Association and Walls400

@ Verbal Arts Centre, Bishop Street Within, Derry/Londonderry,
Sat 21 June 7.30pm

Protestant republicans and Catholic royalists: legacies of the Glorious Revolution

While the Orange Order today claims the legacy of the Glorious Revolution, its lineage back to the 1690s is not unbroken. The Order was founded in 1795, four years after the United Irishmen, whose evolving republicanism was also influenced by the Glorious Revolution's Whig principles. And what of the loser, Jacobitism or Catholic royalism? Did it disappear or did it continue, albeit in disguised form as Irish-Irelandism/Catholic nationalism?

The History Ireland Hedge School aims to bring history alive for today's audiences by providing lively, unfettered debate so to discuss these questions and related matters, join History Ireland editor, Tommy Graham, and the panel: Sylvie Kleinman (TCD), John Gibney (History Ireland), Breandán MacSuibhne (Centenary College, NJ) and Ian McBride (King's College, London).

The History Ireland Hedge School is free to attend but booking is advisable.
Book a place by emailing bookings@historyireland.com

TOUR OPTION

You may also like to avail of a free tour of the 'Hidden parts of the Walls of Derry' @ 4.30pm and a reception at the Verbal Arts @ 7.00pm, courtesy of Walls400.

Please advise if you wish to avail of the tour when booking a place at the Hedge School.

With financial support from Community Relations Council, the Heritage Lottery Fund and the Reconciliation Fund of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Supported by the Reconciliation
Fund of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Community Relations Council

